

caxtonian index

Early issues of the Caxtonian were 4 pages long. The first 6-page issue was January, 1994; 6 pages became the standard in June of that year. The first 8-page issue was January, 1995; that length became standard in September, 1997. Page numbers were added with the April, 1997 issue. A facelift in January, 2000 made a little more room for writing. By way of utter trivia, the August, 2000 issue was the first ever reprinted. Entries here give the date and page number for each listing. Titles of articles are often abbreviated under the name of the author. An asterisk indicates the presence of a picture of the person, place, or thing listed on that page.
